

Manfred Max Bergman and
Thomas Samuel Eberle (Eds.)

Qualitative Inquiry:

Research, Archiving, and Re-use

Contributed by:

Jo-Ann du Plessis

Delphine Quadri

© 2004 Swiss Academy of Humanities and Social Sciences, Hirschengraben 11,
P.O. Box 8160, 3001 Bern
Tel. 031 313 14 40, Fax 031 313 14 50
sagw@sagw.unibe.ch
<http://www.sagw.ch>

ISBN 3-907835-49-2

Table of Contents

Introduction

Thomas S. Eberle and Manfred Max Bergman	5
---	---

Part One:

The why and how of qualitative methods

Promoting qualitative research in Switzerland

Thomas S. Eberle	15
-------------------------	----

The resurgence, legitimation and institutionalization of qualitative methods

Nigel Fielding	27
-----------------------	----

The interpretive turn: history, memory, and storage in qualitative research

Véronique Mottier	39
--------------------------	----

The quality in qualitative methods

Manfred Max Bergman and Anthony P.M. Coxon	51
---	----

Part Two:

The why and how of archiving qualitative data

The value of qualitative data and their archiving: the French situation

Françoise Cribier	79
--------------------------	----

Acquiring qualitative data for secondary analysis

Gill Backhouse	89
-----------------------	----

The concept and architecture of the Bremen Life Course Archive

Diane Opitz and Andreas Witzel	105
---------------------------------------	-----

Providing resources and services on-line: challenges and potentials for qualitative research Katja Mruck	121
Qualitative or Quantitative? Data archiving in documentation, research and teaching Dominique Joye	133
Integrating qualitative and quantitative data: What does the user need? Anthony P.M. Coxon	141
User Support Louise Corti	153
About the Authors	167